THE KING REVIEWING SCOTTISH VOLUNTEERS AT EDINBURGH.

Thirty-eight thousand of Scotland's Volunteers have just been granted the honour of a royal review at Edinburgh. Promoted by Sir Robert Cranston, the Lord Provost, the day's arrangements were carried out by General Sir Charles Tucker. The photographs, which were taken, by permission, by our special photographic correspondent, show—(1) The King with the Duke of Connaught on his left and Sir Charles Tucker on his right going to inspect the Crimean veterans. (2) His Majesty riding down the lines. (3) The march-past (the King's horse is slightly in front). (4) Mr. Arnold-Forster, the Minister of War (on the right), giving some directions. (5) The Royal Archers, with their commanding officer, the Duke of Buccleuch, leading on horseback.

Expectation Far Surpassed

Our expectation was far surpassed by the overwhelming demand resulting from our offer to send a Complete Library in a specially designed Oak Bookcase, for only 2/6 down, as an advertisement for "Lloyd's News." And now comes the gratifying news from those who have already received sets of these magnificent Libraries that their expectation has also been far surpassed. Every post brings in fresh expressions of delight.

If you care to know more about what others praise so highly, send for our Free Descriptive Booklet telling about the International Library and "Lloyd's" extraordinary advertising offer.

An Ornament to the Home

Mr. Sangster, 9, Palmerston-road, Southsea—“I am much pleased. It forms quite an ornamental addition to the home.”

Mr. Edwin Langley, 3, Portland-gardens, Harringay, N.—"It fills the ambition of my life. I feel I am now a wealthy man—in Literature. Having been in the printing trade all my life, I feel great pleasure in stating that the whole production is a credit to the craft."

J. C. Darcy, 67, Corinne-road, Brecknock-road, N.—
“As to the quality of the paper, the printing, the execution of the plates, it is, indeed, beyond praise; it is perfectly astonishing.”

As an Investment

Mr. John Ainsworth (a descendant of Harrison Ainsworth), 20, Addison-gardens, Kensington, W.—“I consider it one of the best investments I have ever made, and that the British public should be grateful to you.”

Mr. F. C. Ward, 128, Lower Thames-street, London, E.C.—“We are very pleased with the Library and book-case. They more than fulfil our expectations.”

case. They more than fulfil our expectations.

Mr. J. Rudge (of the "Chiswick Post"), 20, Rothschild-road, Acton—"I feel so very pleased with the Bookcase and Books that I shall try and get my men to have them."

The Scope of the Library

Francis Jordan, 12, Melton-road, Crumpsall, Manchester—"We are highly pleased, and are anticipating the enjoyment we shall derive from them during the approaching winter evenings."

Mr. Henry Rogers, 47, Chipstead-street, New King's-road, Fulham—"I cannot speak too highly of the beautiful library and its scope. I am proud of the books."

A Storehouse of Pleasure

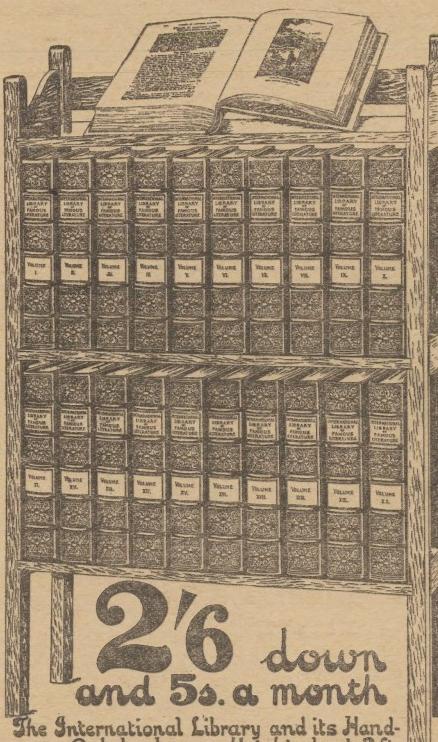

Mr. M. A. Pilcher, 33, Tonsley-place, York-road, Wandsworth—"The books are full of interest, no matter to what page you turn. They are a very valuable addition to our home, and I feel delighted with them."

to our home, and I feel delighted with them.

Mr. I. Goldin, 73, Red Lion-street, Holborn, W.C.—“We greatly admire the arrangements of the authors and the unique collection of stories. The Library far exceeds our expectations, and the beautiful print and handsome binding are the admiration of all who see them.”

Mr. V. Cavie, Wyndhurst, Milward-crescent, Hastings—“It is all you described it, and will be a source of lasting pleasure to me.”

Mr. Toussaint, Alice Villa, Tollesbury, Witham, Essex—“I am astonished at the skill and erudition displayed in carrying out this grand idea.

THE GREATEST POPULAR LIBRARY PROJECT EVER UNDERTAKEN.
200,000 Libraries for 200,000 British Homes.
READING DIVERSION FOR A LIFETIME.

You pay only 2/6 down, and the twenty big sumptuous volumes and the specially designed handsome fumed oak bookcase are sent, carriage paid, to your home in London, or your railway station in the country; and you have nothing more to pay until the books and bookcase have been in your home for a whole month (and what else gives such style and distinction to the home as more about the international Library of beautiful books). After one clear month you commence paying 5/- a week, ^{or 2/- a week extra} months until the post it to the Manager, "Lloyd's Weekly News," 2-6, Salisbury Street, for.

What the Books Mean to the Home

They mean a never-ending source of pleasure, amusement, and instruction, to all the members of the family; and they form, with the handsome Fumed Oak Bookcase, an honour and an adornment to the home. They will also, in a way, constitute a permanent advertisement for "Lloyd's Weekly News;" for although there is no advertisement on the books or the bookcase, you are not likely to forget that "Lloyd's News" made it possible to purchase this Library for so small a price, and that "Lloyd's News" is the biggest and best penny weekly paper in the world, with a circulation of 1,300,000 copies (6,000,000 readers), and it is this advertisement and the possibility of a doubling of our circulation that is the leading factor in the present distribution.

As to the books themselves—these twenty beautiful, big volumes, with their 10,000 pages and their 500 full-page pictures—they reveal the best of the world's best books—of all ages and of all countries; the best books of England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, America, France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Spain, Russia, Japan, Persia, China—ancient Egypt, Greece, and Rome. The classic days, and the glow and glamour of the Orient, mingle in attractive alternation with the vivid pictures of present-day scenes, and passions, loves, and hates. The scope of the volumes is so comprehensive and far-reaching that every writer of the first rank, from the one who penned the Oldest Story of All, thousands of years ago, to the writers of the best stories of the twentieth century, come within their range. Some 1,000 authors in all contribute to the feast, and extend through every form of literary effort—fiction, poetry, history, humour, philosophy, adventure, the drama, legend, fairy-lore, and the rest. There are no dry-as-dust pages, no scraps; there is no padding; all is of the highest quality, whether it be freighted with laughter or tears. And over and above this splendid wealth of reading enjoyment there is a grand gallery of 500 full-page pictures—including portraits of the most celebrated authors, with photographs of many living authors in their homes and studios. The Library has been selected, compiled, and arranged by the four men in the world best able to carry out such an undertaking successfully—Dr. Richard Garnett, C.B., editor-in-chief, M. Leon Vallée, Dr. Alois Brandl, and Donald G. Mitchell—and not to avail yourself of this great opportunity—the like of which never occurred before and may never occur again—is to neglect an important home duty.

Decide at once to avoid delay.

At the rate the libraries are being sold, only the promptest of the prompt can hope for early delivery. Orders are filled in rotation, first come, first served; and delay in ordering may mean weeks of waiting; therefore, if you wish to make sure of a library, send at once (a postcard will do) for the descriptive booklet and specimen pages, sent post free.

THE KING IN THE HIGHLANDS.

His Majesty Fishing on a Secluded Loch.

WEEK'S QUIET REST.

Holiday Far Removed from Turmoil and Ceremony.

Far removed from the Court life and the ceremony and excitement which generally attend his movements, the King is now spending a quiet country holiday in one of the most secluded spots in the Highlands.

At Glenquoich, Lord Burton's highland residence, his Majesty spent yesterday quietly fishing from a boat on Loch Hourn. The house-party is not a large one; the only guests are Lord Lovat, Mr. Baillie of Dochfour and the Hon. Mrs. Baillie, the Hon. Mrs. George Keppel, Lady Savile, Lady Sarah Wilson, Colonel Davidson and the Hon. J. Ward, the Hon. Sir Schomberg McDonnell, Miss Jane Thornewill, Captain the Hon. Seymour Fortescue, and Dr. Lindley Scott.

The utter seclusion of Glenquoich Lodge, which stands in the heart of the Highlands, on the banks of Loch Quoich, twenty-three miles from Invergarry Railway Station, may be judged from the fact that the nearest telegraph office is twenty miles away.

So, as very few travellers pass through that part of the Highlands, his Majesty is able to spend his week's holiday undisturbed, enjoying a rest that must be delightful to one whose life is almost a perpetual round of official duties.

PLEASED WITH VOLUNTEER REVIEW.

To-day there will be a deer drive, in which his Majesty will take part. To-morrow the royal party will motor to Loch Duich, and after steaming past Skye to Loch Hourn, on Lord Burton's yacht, will motor back from thence to Glenquoich Lodge.

On Friday there will be another deer drive, and Saturday the King will spend fishing.

The following telegram has been received by Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Tucker, C.B., Commander-in-Chief in Scotland, from Colonel Arthur Davidson, Esquire-in-Waiting to his Majesty:

"The King commands me to convey to you and to all ranks under your command his Majesty's great satisfaction with the fine appearance of the Scottish Volunteer force reviewed by him."

"The organisation by which so large a number of troops was conveyed from so many different quarters reflects the greatest credit on all concerned."

"His Majesty was greatly pleased with the physique and appearance of the troops, and commands you to convey to all ranks his approval of their steadiness on parade and in marching past. His Majesty heartily congratulates you on the success of the review."

KING EDWARD'S GIFT.

RICHMOND (Virginia), Tuesday.—The rector of Bruton parish, Williamsburg, has received a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury stating that King Edward will present a Balauston lectern for use in his church to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Anglo-Saxon civilisation and of the English Church on the shores of Virginia.

Bruton is the second oldest church in the United States, being the legal successor to the church of Jamestown.—Reuter.

FRANCE SURPRISED.

An Exchange telegram from Paris says that, according to last night's "Temps," the prolonging of the Franco-German negotiations concerning Morocco, and the hesitation of Germany to accept the French proposals, has produced an impression of discontent and surprise.

IN SEARCH OF THE CLAVERDALE.

Vladivostock, Tuesday.—To search for the missing British steamer Claverdale, reported to be ashore south of Vladivostock, a salvage steamer left yesterday to cruise down the coast.

The Claverdale was posted as missing four months ago.—Central News.

PLAQUE-STRIKEN COUNTRIES.

India, with the exception of Ceylon, the island of Mauritius, Upper Egypt, Alexandria, and Port Said, continue to be dangerously affected with plague, says a dispatch received by the Foreign Office last night.

the "Daily Mirror" days-to-morrow, Friday, and Saturday—admission will be obtained free of charge merely by producing coupons cut out of the "Daily Mirror" on each of these dates.

If you want to go to-morrow cut out the coupon in tomorrow's "Daily Mirror."

If you want to go on Friday cut out the coupon in Saturday's "Daily Mirror."

If you want to go all three days cut out the coupons each day.

There, free of charge, an enormous programme has been arranged by Mr. Cozens, manager of the Crystal Palace, and his skilled staff of assistants.

Owing to contracts, it is impossible that all the side-shows should be thrown open free of charge, terrible Niagara Falls on a tight-rope, and she has also crossed the Umzini Falls in South Africa on a wire suspended 300 feet above the raging torrents.

"Of course I have never felt afraid," said Miss Zulila to the "Daily Mirror." "I feel just as safe on a wire as I do standing here on the ground. But I may tell you if I had fallen at Umzini I should never have been found again."

Cut out to-morrow's coupon and you will see.

Little Mona, who is to perform for "Daily Mirror" readers at the Cafe Chantant to-morrow and the two following days, will be a great favourite with our readers.

She is a very clever, little, eleven-year-old dancer, singer, and reciter. She has performed in public since she was four and a half years old.

"I cried two nights ago," she told the "Daily Mirror" yesterday, "because I heard that the "Daily Mirror" Days were not until next week. I am so glad that I am going to perform before your readers. No, I am not a bit afraid of a crowd. I once performed before 5,000 people at Liverpool. And, she added, in a whisper, "my performance is over in time for me to see the fireworks. I just love fireworks. I am going to sing my 'Doll Song,' because people seem to like that best. Yes, I have appeared at the Tivoli, and I loved being in London, but I specially wanted to be here for "Daily Mirror" Days."

Cut out to-morrow's coupon and you will see.

Another great favourite, Miss Esmond, who made such a great hit with "You Can't Stop the Sun from Shining," Miss Esmond will sing the "Jersey Lily" and other popular songs to our readers.

And the fireworks will be stupendous.

Mr. Cozens has hit upon a most novel idea for our readers on "Children's Day" (Friday). At three o'clock the football ground at the Crystal

BABYOLOGICAL

MAXIMS.

Theatrical Posters Develop Sanguinary Instincts in Children.

BIRD-NESTING BANNED.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LIEGE, Tuesday.—Thousands of maxims were given forth at the resumption of the great International Baby Congress to-day on the proper and scientific upbringing of his Majesty the Baby.

During the day the delegates visited the two model nurseries that have been installed in the exhibition—soft-carpeted chambers furnished with chairs and tables without sharp edges, and with pictures and toys alleged by the experts to instruct as well as to amuse.

The papers delivered to-day scintillated with good advice and hints on health and hygiene, but added little to what is already known. Below are some of the most striking quotations:

M. P. le Brun, director of "l'Ecole des Garçons," Clermont (France), on Ambidexterity:—"Many opportunities will be given to the child to use each of all his five senses, but it is necessary to teach the boy or girl to use one hand only in the daily duties?"

"It is like showing a partiality to one of two sisters. To one we give a careful education, whilst we abandon the other and allow to her only secondary and unimportant tasks. If we use both hands equally their strength and agility are equivalent. Therefore I advocate ambidexterity as a necessary item in a child's training."

SOCKS PREFERRED.

Hygiene of Clothing, by M. P. le Brun:—"Socks are preferable to stockings for children, especially for boys. They have the advantage of dispensing with too tight garters, which interfere with the proper circulation of the blood."

"Braces are better than a belt both for the child and the man."

"Shirts of flannel or cotton ought to be preferred to those of linen."

M. Pierre Delphy, of Tarascon (Ariège): "How can a child be cruel to animals and the reverse to his fellow-creatures? Too often are children nowadays allowed to be cruel to dumb animals and escape scot-free."

Who thinks of seriously preventing children from stealing birds' nests, from killing flies or harmless insects, or sometimes from subjecting a small cat or dog to excruciating torture?

"I suggest a society for the protection of animals in every school, each child, irrespective of age, to be a member."

CHILD SPENDTHRIFTS.

Children's Clubs, by M. Houelle, of Montmedy: "Much too much money is spent on luxury for children nowadays. With their quick perception and intelligence, children are brought to realise what nice things money can buy, and they scatter the little money they may have with an extravagance equivalent to that of spendthrifts. I propose the formation of a club for economy between young children, supervised by masters and parents."

M. P. le Brun:—"The practice of supplying children with reading matter must be slow but sure. Illustrated newspapers I should always entrust to the child—that is to say, the higher class of illustrations, and not that of the morbid and sensational kind. But I am against all kinds of novels. A good wholesome romance is a treasure, but no matter what story you read it would be nothing short of a miracle if you did not come across some story of a murder, theft, or of criminal doings."

The cheap kind of grotesque advertisement pictures should never be left in the hands of our young ones. These bold, horrid, dramatic, theatrical posters in the streets do nothing but develop a sanguinary instinct in the modern child."

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS.

It is rumoured that the King of Italy will visit King Edward in November.

Contess Lonyay is visiting Brussels for the first time since the death of her mother.

By means of a photograph depicting the actual murder of General Bobrikoff, the late Governor of Finland, the Russian police hope to trace an accomplice of the assassin.

Prince Alexander of Servia, second son of King Peter, arrived at St. Petersburg yesterday, says Reuter, to enter the military training institution known as the Corps of Pages.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Our special weather forecast for to-day is:—Westerly breezes; fair or fine generally; some local showers; rather warm.

Lighting-up time, 7.2 p.m.
Sea passages will be smooth to moderate.

ROYAL TOUR THROUGH INDIA.

Brilliant Receptions Arranged for the Prince of Wales.

VISIT TO BURMA.

The programme of the Prince and Princess of Wales's tour in India is now practically completed, and it is possible to give some idea of the magnificent pageants and ceremonies which have been prepared for their Royal Highnesses.

On November 8, 1873, King Edward, then Prince of Wales, arrived at Bombay at the beginning of his Indian tour.

On November 9, 1905, just thirty years afterwards, their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales will set foot for the first time in India, also landing at Bombay.

During the four months they are in India (they leave Karachi for home on March 19, 1906), they will travel over practically all the British part of the country and also visit the native States and Burma.

The fact that they will land on the King-Emperor's birthday has not escaped notice, and their stay in Bombay is to be made the occasion of a display unequalled even in the annals of the glorious East.

Bombay's New Dock.

They will be received in full state by the Earl of Minto—the new Viceroy—who will go on board the Renown. Afterwards the royal party will land and receive the native chiefs in all the glory of many-hued turbans and blazing jewels. In the evening the Viceroy will dine with their Majesties in state at Government House. During the stay in this city, which lasts till November 15, they will lay the foundation-stone of a new dock, open a new street in the native town, and attend various banquets and a ball. The whole city will be lavishly decorated, and there will be magnificent displays of fireworks.

Among other presentations will be a silver album of paintings from the native ladies of the town, an address in a magnificent carved ivory casket from the School of Art, and an address in no fewer than six languages. The Princess is to be personally received by the native ladies, who are usually kept strictly shut away from the public eye.

Bombay will also mark its appreciation of the occasion by erecting a statue in honour of the Princess, and a museum, in which shall be installed various archaeological and artistic treasures now spread half over India, will be built at a cost of some £50,000.

Reasons for the Tour.

November 16-27 will be spent in the Rajputana Native States. As was explained to the Daily Mirror by a high official of the Prince's entourage, it is greatly hoped that the visit to these States—and, in fact, the visit generally—will tend to allay the irritation among the natives caused by the unfortunate resignation of Lord Curzon. "The native," he said, "looks on the King as a God who cannot do wrong, and considers the Viceroy very much in the same light—as a much bigger person, in fact, than the Commander-in-Chief." Consequently when the Viceroy retires, worsted, as the native shrewdly guesses, by that very Commander-in-Chief, his confidence in the King's divinity tends to become weaker.

This, coupled with the fact that for thirty years no member of the Royal Family has been seen in India, and that many of the natives believe that the King has never actually come to the Throne, may bring trouble. In any case, it was high time for a visit of this kind.

A Business Visit.

With this idea, November 28 to December 1 will be spent at the Sikh camp in Lahore. From there their Royal Highnesses will go on for two days to Peshawar, on the North-West Frontier. In view of possible eventualities the Prince is very anxious to make himself acquainted with the Frontier, and his visit all through is intended to be a thoroughly business one.

From December 7-10 the royal party will be at Delhi. Here, as almost everywhere, the native chiefs will be received, and a ball attended at which the gorgeous jewels and vivid colouring of the native chiefs' dresses, combined with the blaze of diplomatic and military uniforms and orders, will make a unique display.

Five days will then probably be spent in the Commander-in-Chief's camp. This project may have to be given up account of famine, but rain has fallen at Lahore, and it is hoped may soon fall at Delhi.

From Delhi their Royal Highnesses will go south to Agra, which will be reached on December 16 and left on December 19. Thence they will go to Blahpur (two days), Gwalior (four days), Lucknow (two days), and then straightway to Calcutta (December 29-January 6), where they will lay the foundation-stone of the new Victoria Memorial Hall, and a diamond necklace worth nearly £22,000 will be presented to the Princess.

£20,000 GIFT.

Sir Donald Currie's Latest Addition to Long List of Benefactions.

Following upon his munificent gift last year of £100,000 to the London University, Sir Donald Currie, of the Union Castle Line, has, says an Exchange telegram, promised £20,000 to the Belfast Queen's College Equipment Fund.

Sir Donald Currie's fame and fortune are entirely due to his indomitable energy, for he is a self-made man, and entered upon his commercial career at the age of fourteen in a shipping office at Greenwich. He next entered the service of the Cunard Company with which firm he remained until 1862, when, with characteristic enterprise, he chartered a few old sailing-ships, converted them to steam craft, and started the Castle Line to Calcutta. Success smiled upon him, and he diverted the line to South Africa.

In 1877 his services in settling the diamond-fields dispute earned him a C.M.G., and four years later came his knighthood.

ROYAL SNAPSHOTS.

Pictures by Her Majesty the Feature of a Photographic Exhibition.

Photographs taken by her Majesty the Queen form the most interesting feature of the Royal Photographic Society's Fiftieth Annual Exhibition, the Press view of which took place yesterday.

The royal snapshots include a wide range of subjects, from the pictures of the children of the Prince and Princess of Wales in the private garden of Marlborough House to glimpses by the wayside and seascapes "snapped" from the deck of the royal yacht.

Her Majesty has been very happy in the choice of her subjects, and her technical skill is evidenced by the excellent manner in which the pictures have stood enlargement.

In the exhibition 900 pictures in all are shown by the various exhibitors.

SAFER LAMPS WANTED.

Grocery Exhibition Encourages Devices Which Will Minimise Fire Risks.

Not a week passes without some fatal accident being recorded in connection with domestic lamps.

With a view to the one hand of diminishing the terrible death roll, and on the other hand of helping inventors, a prize of £150 has been offered by the directors of the Grocery Exhibition at the Agricultural Hall for a real safety lamp.

Yesterday at the Hall the lamps sent in for competition were displayed. They were of all kinds and sizes, representing many ingenious devices.

But the prize lamp must be a real safety lamp; it must be cheap, and must be simple in construction.

For some months the judging will be carried on, and as a commentary on the difficulty of obtaining a real safety lamp no one has gained the prize during the four years it has been offered, although over 300 different lamps have been sent in.

MARRIED HIS AUNT.

Bridegroom-Nephew Gives "Daily Mirror" His Version of the Strange Romance.

New light (writes the Daily Mirror Newcastle correspondent) has been thrown on the strange romance of the young man Wawerowski, who married his aunt at Cheltenham and separated from her a day or two afterwards.

It will be remembered that the family, when they heard of the wedding, interfered, and the bride died three weeks afterwards.

I saw Wawerowski at Blyth yesterday, and he said that his aunt was forty-three and he was twenty years her junior.

When he went to stay with her and her aged father recently she took a strong liking to him, said she did not regard him as a nephew, and suggested that he should marry, but that they should live apart until her father's death.

He declined at first, but finally consented, saying she would supply the money. They were married and separated. He did not know it was not legal. His aunt had not died from shock caused by interference, but from pneumonia.

ROYAL VISIT TO GUERNSEY.

Guernsey will welcome the Duke of Connaught on Saturday when his Royal Highness, as Inspector-General of the Forces, will arrive for his tour of inspection of the Channel Islands' garrison.

He will unveil a war memorial to Guernsey men.

HONOURING THE PREMIER.

The Prime Minister is to be presented with the Freedom of the City of Edinburgh on October 19, the ceremony taking place in the Synod Hall.

ALL WANT MONEY.

Winner of £40,000 Lottery Prize Asked To Distribute £10,000,000.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Tuesday.—Since Mme. Hofer, the canary-keeper of Sedan, won the £40,000 prize in the great Press lottery she has been inundated with letters begging money and proposing marriage.

One of the papers gives a sample of the correspondence which comes every day by the sackful. One poor workman, earning three francs a day, asks for £40 to start a stationer's shop. Another wants the lucky winner to buy an encyclopaedia, a gun, and a carbine for £10, in order to avoid their being seized for the rent.

A countess asks £4,000 for an orphanage, and an officer wants £400 for the education of his two children. Another wants a few thousands to start a model farm. Still another wants money to put another storey on to his house.

Pathetic is the case of a poor widow with nine children, who wants only a trifle.

The offers of marriage are still more singular. Here is one:

"I am an officer on the active list; I have big brown moustache and a decoration. Will you be my wife? If so I will resign, and we shall be very happy."

Another says: "Something tells me, madame, that my affinity is you."

There are some disinterested letters. One is from a German, who says that without the assistance of Mme. Hofer's late husband he would have died of hunger twenty years ago.

Altogether Mme. Hofer has been asked for about £10,000,000, and she has received some ten thousand letters.

TSAR CALLS FOR PEACE.

Issues a Summons for Another World Conference to Ameliorate the Horrors of War.

The Tsar of Russia has summoned a new Peace Conference.

This announcement, which in view of his Imperial Majesty's reluctance to abandon the recent war sounds grimly humorous, is made from New York, where dispatch has been received from St. Petersburg.

It is added, says the Central News' correspondent, that the question whether the initiative in calling the Conference should be taken by President Roosevelt or the Tsar was discussed at the meeting between Baron Rosen and the President early last week.

All the world knows, the first Peace Conference, held at The Hague in May, 1899, was mainly due to the efforts of the Tsar.

The principal effect of the Conference was the foundation of the Permanent Arbitration Court, which has already successfully dealt with several questions.

READY FOR THE NEXT WAR.

Army Council Striving To Render Another Remount Scandal Impossible.

The lessons of the Boer war have not been lost upon the Army Council, which is anxious not to allow a repetition of those expensive and discreditable experiences that occurred over remounts.

In any future campaign an official of the Quartermaster-General's Department will be appointed director of transport and remounts, and will be the first to proceed to the theatre of war.

He will make all arrangements for the disembarkation of the troops and stores and their transport. He will also organise the local transport and resources of the country. He will be chief adviser on the questions of remounts and transport to the home authorities.

The question of the supply of remounts in war time is being steadily dealt with, and attachés and special officers abroad are reporting as to where supplies of horses can be found.

PESTS REPORTED RARE.

Scientists Advertise in Vain for "Insects Which Sometimes Infest Bedrooms."

Much amusement has been caused in Lancashire towns by a notice issued to the public by the Johnston Tropical Laboratory of the Liverpool University.

The laboratory asks for 500 specimens of "cimex lectularius" an insect which sometimes infests bedrooms, and one halfpenny each is offered for uninjured specimens.

NEW SUFFRAGAN BISHOP.

King Edward has appointed the Rev. Welbore MacCarthy, vicar of All Saints', Gainsborough, as Bishop Suffragan of Grantham, in the diocese of Lincoln.

'LONG FIRM' SUSPECTS

Graphic Narrative of Their Arrest in Wales.

LESLIE'S GALLANT APPEAL

A graphic story of how Detective-inspector John Willis, of the City Police, arrested at Aberystwyth William Leslie and Francis Cheeseman on a charge of being concerned in the well-known long firm fraud cause, said to involve £30,000, was narrated by that officer at the Guildhall yesterday.

It was about twenty to ten on Saturday evening, said the officer, when he, with other detectives, saw Leslie enter the Aberystwyth Railway Station.

"Your name is Leslie," said Willis. "You have made a great mistake," coolly replied the man. "I think not," answered the detective, "but we will discuss that at the police station."

When they were about to enter that building Leslie made an attempt to break away, and when this was frustrated he was compelled to go inside where he once more warned his captors that he were making a great mistake.

Det. Half and Missing Moustache.

Inspector Willis's reply to this was to draw Leslie's attention to the fact that his (prisoner's) hair was dyed and the moustache, which he was wearing when in London, had disappeared. He also added that he was sure the prisoner was Leslie, that he would be charged with conspiracy to defraud, and that he would have to return to town.

Three diamond rings, a gold watch and chain, a sovereign purse, and buttons bearing the name of a Putney firm (Leslie used to live at Putney) were amongst the articles found upon him.

Inspector Willis then related how he went to Glanrigel, Smithfield-road, Aberystwyth, and saw the female prisoner. "Good evening, Miss Cheeseman," was the courteous remark with which the inspector opened the conversation.

The lady greeted him with marked coolness. "You are mistaken," she replied.

"Well, asked the inspector, "what is your name? Is it Alice Norton?" To this inquiry no reply was vouchafed.

Policy of Silence.

The officer, having explained who he was and expressed his belief that she was Cheeseman, told her that Leslie was already in custody, and that she would be taken with him to London.

"What has become of the notes and gold?" inquired the officer, still as courteous as ever. He was met with a sharp reply: "I decline to say anything."

"Is it yours?" persisted Inspector Willis, drawing attention to a lady's wrist-bag (containing money and jewellery) on the mantelpiece. She replied in the negative.

On searching some boxes in the bedroom the inspector found two bags wrapped in rags and containing about £2,000 in gold. There were fourteen £5 notes in another bag and five £20 notes.

At the railway station he discovered a box in the name of "Bond." This on being opened with a key which he found on Leslie disclosed two bags wrapped in old clothing and straw containing about £4,000 in gold.

Bail for Miss Cheeseman Refused.

This was all the evidence tendered, and declining to ask any questions, Leslie and Cheeseman were remanded in order to be brought up with two men who have been remanded in connection with the case.

It was at this point that Leslie, who is a smart, good-looking, clean-shaven man, made a gallant appeal on behalf of Cheeseman, who is a dark, pale-looking, well-dressed girl of rather attractive features. She is only about twenty-four years of age.

Leslie: I want to ask you, sir, if you can allow me bail for the lady. This lady has never been in any trouble before, and she is absolutely innocent of any charge.

The Alderman: You must make your application when the case is next gone into. I must refuse it now, however.

Leslie (eagerly): Is it absolutely impossible to grant it?

The Alderman: It is.

Prisoners then left the dock, both looking somewhat dejected at the alderman's refusal to grant bail.

TO AID BRITISH EXHIBITORS.

To defray the expenses of the British section at the forthcoming exhibition at Milan, the Government has made a grant of £10,000.

IS IT A TRAGEDY?

Blackpool is still puzzled by the discovery of a suit of clothing found on the beach, and apparently belonging to a soldier named Tate.

A letter on religious matters found in one of the pockets was from Miss Cartner, a mission worker among soldiers at Malta.

MISS LUTINA'S DEFENCE.

Many Witnesses Speak of Her High Character.

"POLICE ARE MORTAL."

The defence of Miss Lillian Grey, an elocutionist and actress, better known as Aida Lutina, who is contesting a police charge of misconduct in Woburn-place on August 24, was resumed at the Clerkenwell Police Court yesterday.

Mr. Musket is appearing on behalf of the Chief Commissioner of Police, and the case for Miss Grey was in the hands of Mr. Cox Sinclair and Mr. Lionel Benson.

It will be remembered that the information was laid by Police-constable Clark, and at the last hearing one of Miss Grey's witnesses made the startling allegation that he had been approached by the officer to give certain evidence, which he refused to do.

Mr. William Vernon, stationer, of Lamb's Conduit-street, yesterday told the Court he had known Miss Grey for four or five years. He had always regarded her as perfectly respectable.

Lady Missionary's Evidence.

Similar evidence was given by Mr. Frederick Tree, of Gray's Inn-road, and Mrs. Austin, who keeps a wine and spirit shop in Cosmo-place.

The latter, who said she had known Miss Grey for twelve years, remarked in cross-examination that she had spent hours in the house with her (witness's) children and at all times her conduct was above reproach.

A very interesting witness was Matilda Ricketts, an elderly resident of Great James-street, Bedford-row. Two years ago Miss Grey occupied a bed-sitting-room in her house.

Mrs. Ricketts observed that for the last forty or fifty years she herself had been engaged in missionary work, in the performance of which she had gained varied and extensive experience of all sorts and conditions of women. She was confident as to Miss Grey's absolute respectability.

George May, of Lamb's Conduit-street, then gave some account of the accused's movements on the night in regard to which she is charged.

Miss Grey's Movements.

He was positive, he said, that on this night Miss Grey called at his house with a hat for his wife to work on.

What time was it when she called?—Ten o'clock. And how long did she stay?—Until twenty-five minutes past eleven.

Witness and his wife afterwards walked with Miss Grey to the corner of the street, and there left her.

From this point the story was carried on till midnight on the 24th by a serving-girl at a Tottenham Court-road fish-shop, who said that at that time Miss Grey bought some cooked fish, which she carried away with her in a bag.

Now came a tug of war between the opposing counsel. Mr. Sinclair wanted another adjournment. This, he said, would enable him to call Mr. Hill, his client's landlord, who would show that Miss Grey was such a desirable tenant that her lease was renewed when it might have been easily terminated.

Speech for the Defence.

To this application Mr. Musket raised a somewhat heated protest, which evoked from Mr. Sinclair a very spirited rejoinder.

"The case," gently interposed Mr. Bros., "has been conducted with the greatest courtesy and decorum on both sides up to now. We must continue," the magistrate added quietly and firmly.

After this intimation Mr. Sinclair proceeded with his speech for the defense.

The police, he added, were as liable to err as other mortals. It was true that his client was wandering about the streets apparently aimlessly and alone at a late hour at night, but there was a great gulf between this and a charge of misconduct.

Mr. Bros. said he would give an opportunity for defendant to call her other witness, and he would also like to read what had appeared in the Press. Apparently the constable had smarted under a suggestion that he was committing perjury. If such a suggestion were made while the case was sub judice it was most improper.

The case was adjourned until Friday.

LEA PARK A RACECOURSE.

Mr. Whitaker Wright's Famous Estate To Be Transformed.

The varying fortune of a country estate is once more emphasised by the fate of Lea Park, the magnificent Surrey estate of the late Whitaker Wright.

It is to be converted into a racecourse for steeple-chasing under National Hunt rules, provided that the consent of the authorities who rule the sport is obtained.

The place has been on the market as a country seat ever since the death of the ill-fated financier, who purchased it for £250,000 and spent another half-million of money on it.

It is now proposed to devote £200,000 to the purchase of the estate, which is heavily mortgaged.

Mrs. Wright, who has nothing else but Lea Park, will, when affairs are settled, retain a small percentage of the great sum which her husband spent on his Witley property.

According to the present plan, the mansion will be turned into a clubhouse, and the famous subterranean palace will form one of the attractions of the pleasure gardens, the idea being that the course should be rather a fashionable pleasure resort than a racecourse pure and simple.

STOCKING A BUSINESS.

Pathetic Appeal by Advertisement Leads to a Prosecution.

"Will any charitable lady kindly help out of difficulty an experienced business woman, who has lost a lot of money through saving a family from ruin?"

In answer to this advertisement three young women called on Leonie Boulat at her premises in Edgware-road, and, it is alleged, advanced her two sums of £30 and one of £20 on the understanding that the money was required for stocking her dressmaking business.

But the money, it was said, was not applied for that purpose, and in consequence Mlle. Boulat appeared at Marylebone yesterday charged with obtaining credit by fraud.

"She may be one of those unfortunate dressmakers who find it difficult to obtain the money they earn," said the magistrate committing her for trial.

DEVEREUX'S WILL.

Probate Granted of Document Written in Gaol Just Before Execution.

Probate was granted in London yesterday of the will of Arthur Devereux, described as of "His Majesty's Prison of Pentonville, Caledonian-road, formerly of 60, Milton-avenue, Harlesden, who died on the 15th August, 1905, in the said prison."

The sole executor is Mr. Henri Pierron, solicitor, of 3, Craven Park, Harlesden, and of 8, Vernon-street, W. Kensington, who has valued the estate for probate at £50. The will consists of fifteen lines, typewritten on a sheet of foolscap, and in it Devereux bequeaths all his real and personal estate to his trustee, to convert the same into money, and after payment of his debts to hold the remainder for the benefit of his son, Stanley.

The will is dated August 14, 1905, and was therefore written in Pentonville Gaol just before his execution.

WIFE'S QUAINTE APOLOGY.

Presents Husband's Regrets That He Struck Another Lady Instead of Herself.

Whilst standing at her door in Queen's-road, Stoenbridge, Mrs. Nobbs was greatly surprised to receive from behind a blow which felled her to the ground.

Her assailant she discovered to be William Hardinge, a neighbour with whom she was unacquainted.

The unprovoked assault was a mystery to her until she received a call from Mrs. Hardinge.

Mrs. Hardinge presented her compliments to Mrs. Nobbs and desired to say that her husband had made a grave error.

He had hit her (Mrs. Nobbs) in mistake for the caller (Mrs. Hardinge), but the latter did not appear to bear any malice on that account.

The case came yesterday before the Willesden magistrate, who, although he recognised the mistake by dismissing the case, remarked that a man had no more right to assault his wife than he had to strike another woman.

MIDLAND RAILWAY'S MANAGER.

In reply to an inquiry from the Daily Mirror, Mr. John Mathieson yesterday telephoned that there is no foundation for a report that he is about to retire from the position of general manager of the Midland Railway Company.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIG.

Richest Man in the World Worried by Hair That Slips.

OIL KING UNBENDS.

America is rejoicing at the effect of Mr. John D. Rockefeller's new wig. The newspapers are publishing pictures of him "before" and "after," with the headlines: "First photograph of Mr. Rockefeller in his new wig."

As our photograph of the Oil King shows, it is not a particularly good wig. It sticks out somewhat; it does not look much like real hair, and it is said to slip at times. In fact, during the first day he wore it, Mr. Rockefeller is said to have repeatedly asked: "Is my wig on straight?" It is suspected that although Mr. Rockefeller has a fortune estimated at £200,000,000 he was frugally-minded when he went shopping for a wig and bought a second-hand one.

But the richest man in the world has unbent wonderfully of late. Only a few days ago he received a party of American Press Humorists at his magnificent home, and chatted jocularly with them that some of them even went so far as to ask him if he used hair oil, and the Oil King condescended to smile.

Secrets of His Success.
Then he cracked a joke or two, and the visitors made him a member of their society, and decorated him with its Order.

After this he allowed himself to be interviewed—a very rare concession. He told the interviewer that it takes infinite patience and courage to compel men to have confidence in you, and added:

"I believe I have both of those qualities, and I believe that they are the secrets of my success."

He told how, when he was a clerk making out bills of lading for canal and lake boats in Cleveland, the captains had tried to persuade him to make out incorrect bills. He refused them patiently and courageously. The news got round, and his employers and others had confidence in him.

And all this condescension of Mr. Rockefeller's is ascribed to his new wig, which has made him feel much more comfortable, and made him appear, if not exactly good-looking, at least more attractive than he was.

Suggested His Own Wig.

The wig was bought through Mr. Rockefeller's devotion to church. As everyone knows he is a regular attendant at the Euclid-avenue Baptist Chapel. While at home and in his office he avoids the draughts, which so affected his bald head. But in church he could not wear his cap, and the draughts troubled him.

Now, for years the millionaire has striven to grow hair. He has tried all sorts of preparations, has taken to cycling, and even gone bare headed. But he, in spite of everything, remained completely bald.

He himself recently suggested the wig in jest, but his physician said it would protect him against colds and strongly advised it. Mr. Rockefeller gave way, stipulating only that it should be white, but this Mrs. Rockefeller objected to, and the wig is grey.

SON PROSECUTES FATHER.

"Do you wish me to send your father to prison?" asked Mr. Paul Taylor, the Marylebone magistrate, yesterday, of William Trowles, a young man who charged his father with stealing a bicycle and a pair of boots.

On the son saying that he did not, Mr. Taylor bound the father over in £5.

MYSTERY OF A BABY.

In a first-class carriage of the London and South-Western Railway at Kingston, early yesterday morning, the mutilated body of a baby was found wrapped in a paper parcel.

NOVELIST AND L.C.C.

"John Strange Winter" Complains of Her Daughter Being Waylaid.

An added terror of modern life has been piloted by Mrs. Stannard, known to literature as "John Strange Winter," who relates an instance of the "tyranny" of County Council school inspectors.

"This morning," writes Mrs. Stannard to a confidante, "my youngest girl, aged nine years, went into a sweet-shop. She was there tackled by a School Board inspector, who asked her where she went to school, and other questions, and took down her name and address.

"The child, who is of a nervous disposition, came home scared out of her wits, and for a long time we could not pacify her. It is an outrage that any child, not breaking the peace or obviously neglected, should be interfered with by a person dressed in a little brief authority."

Mr. W. W. Braines, of the London County Council, told the Daily Mirror yesterday that it was the Council's duty to see that children, whether rich or poor, received proper education, and for this reason the inspector was only doing his duty.

Mrs. Stannard opens up a wide field for discussion when she suggests that the decay of home life is largely due to the fact that children no longer feel that their parents are free agents.

CONVICT UP IN A TREE.

Daring Dash for Liberty and Exciting Recapture by Warders.

A daring attempt to escape from Lewes Gaol was made by a convict named Collinson, of Birmingham, yesterday.

Collinson, a strong, active man, undergoing twelve years for wounding, climbed a stack-pipe, got to the roof of the building, and thence to the top of the prison wall which surrounds the exercise yard.

He then took a flying leap, dropping into the governor's garden, which fronts the main road to Brighton.

Turning down a by-road, Collinson made for cover in Lewes Isolation Hospital grounds, pursued by warders and a local policeman.

A workman saw him climb into a tree, and gave information to the officials, who, after an exciting struggle, effected the man's recapture.

LAW STUDENT'S TRINKETS.

Bankrupt at Twenty-four, He Has a Collection of Jewels Worth £1,200.

"All these jewellers wait on young gentlemen to get them to incur large debts, and then blackmail them if they won't pay."

So said Guy Reade, who was charged at Marlborough-street yesterday with obtaining credit from various jewellers.

He is a young law student, twenty-four years old, and it was stated that last year he became bankrupt with liabilities of £13,000; assets nil.

From 1903 to 1904, it was asserted, he had acquired jewellery in all worth £1,200, but his cheques had been returned by the bankers. He was remanded on bail.

FORTUNES FOR THE CROWN.

Nearly a Million Left by People Who Died Intestate and Without Heirs.

In addition to the two estates valued at £175,872 which recently fell to the Crown, five other valuable estates, to the value of £669,000, have also become Crown property through people dying intestate and without heirs during the last thirty-five years.

The estates were those of:

Captain G. Wilson, of Folkestone (1905), £150,200.

Mr. John Wilson, of Hyde Park (1898), £25,000.

Mr. W. Heathcote (1894), £200,000.

Mr. G. Perton, of Cheltenham (1881), £300,000.

Mr. H. Blake, of Kensington (1876), £140,000.

Mr. W. Younghusband (1870), £50,000.

There have also been many other estates claimed by the Crown which add considerably to this total, but they have been of comparatively small value.

Another fortune of £200,000 was claimed by the Crown in 1871, but in this case some relatives coming from Italy a few years afterwards succeeded in recovering the money.

CURED BY MIRACLE.

Wonderful Scenes at Lourdes
Vividly Described.

AUTHENTIC CASES.

The annual pilgrimage of Roman Catholic sufferers to Lourdes, where they hoped to be cured at the Holy Grotto, is just over. The following article, by a writer who went with one of these pilgrimages, gives a vivid picture of the scenes at Lourdes, and some remarkable instances of cures effected.

It was at Tours that we joined the pilgrimage train. It was laden with sick, halt, lame, and blind; in fact, with people suffering from innumerable diseases which were not contagious.

How many of the poor souls return uncured! There are few outward signs that they are disappointed, yet their hearts must be heavy. They must resign themselves to their fate, though, and wait patiently and pray fervently, and look forward to the next great national pilgrimage to our "Lady of Lourdes."

A WONDERFUL CURE.

At Tours Station we were particularly impressed with a little Sister of Mercy, who was carried on a stretcher, helpless, and in an utter state of collapse, deathly white. She was unconscious, probably owing to the heat. We watched her friends bathing her brow and trying to bring her round with the aid of cold water. She was called Sister Claire, and was from the Order of Sisters of Providence.

Sister Claire was twenty-two years of age, had suffered for eighteen months from chronic gastritis, and serious complications, and was unable to partake of any solid food.

Imagine our pleasure on the following day, when we met Sister Claire cured, and able to walk, her face the picture of health, able to eat solid food, and oh! so happy and grateful to the Almighty for His wonderful blessing.

The most wonderful of the many cures I saw was a girl twenty-three years of age, blind almost from birth. She told us she never recollects having seen daylight. She was staying at the same hotel—the Villa Bethanie, and we saw her on many occasions.

On the fourth day of our stay we were returning to our hotel for dinner, and as we were passing the statue of Our Lady there we saw her surrounded by nearly a hundred people praying for her cure, whilst she was bathing her eyes with water taken from the spring at the Grotto.

UNFORGETTABLE SCENE.

What a scene! Were I to live to be a thousand years I should never forget it. God was answering their prayers! I can see it now. There was the poor girl, pouring the water on her handkerchief, bathing her eyes the people around her praying, not reciting prayers, but real fervent prayers—every word from their hearts.

"Look! Look! She sees! Hosannah! Hosannah!" the cry goes up from every voice. Tears of joy could not be withheld, tearing her eyes open, almost trying to see more and more. The expression on her face spoke for itself. She saw for the first time in her life, and the first thing she saw was the statue of Our Lady of Lourdes.

It was a permanent cure. My brother afterwards wrote to the Medical Bureau, and had a reply that the cure was perfect.

I have the written testimony of one girl—Gracia Batut—who was cured of tuberculosis of the stomach. I asked her to write something on a picture-postcard as a memento of her cure, and she wrote as follows:—"Gracia Batut, guérie le 20 aout, 1899, d'une maladie d'estomac tuberculeuse" (cured of a tuberculous disease of the stomach, August 20, 1899).

Still another case—Rose Valée, aged twenty-four, from Avalon, Yonne, a sufferer for two years from a tumour in her knee. She, also, was cured, and no traces of the disease were left. These are only some instances of many that we saw.

THE WILL OF GOD.

Every afternoon at three o'clock takes place the most touching scene of the day. Then are the poor pilgrims laid out two and three deep on either side of the path leading from the church around to the Grotto, awaiting the procession of the Blessed Sacrament. It passes amid their cries of "Lord, cure me," "Cure our infirmities," "Show us Thy power," "If Thou wilt then cause me to," and similar supplications. It reminds one of the days of our Lord, and the miracles related in the New Testament. Several cures took place on each afternoon we were there. I take from my diary an instance: "Sunday, August 20, 1899."

During the procession four cases—one old woman, one girl about twenty-four, and two little girls, all unable to walk, and having to use crutches or stretchers. These were able to discard their crutches and join in the procession."

Many times I have been asked for an explanation. The water is ordinary spring water. There are no healing powers in it any more than in ordinary water. What can it be? I cannot explain. Faith is my only thought, and the only conclusion I can come to is that those whom God wills to be cured are cured. It is God's will!

LAST NIGHT'S NEWS ITEMS.

An objection to the vote of Peter Marsh was withdrawn at Rotherhithe when it was stated that he took part in the Balaklava Charge.

Among the passengers who sailed on the ss. Caronia, from Liverpool, en route for New York, yesterday, were Mr. H. P. Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Sutro.

Mrs. Lapsley, an American visitor, was run over by a hansom cab in Cockspur-street yesterday. She was conveyed to Charing Cross Hospital suffering from severe shock.

False statements by two Penge women, who hoped to baffle the vaccination officer, as to the birthplaces of their children were yesterday punished by fines of £1 and costs.

Sir Thomas Lipton, who was injured by a fall from his horse at the royal review at Edinburgh, on Monday, is progressing fairly well. King Edward telegraphed his inquiry yesterday.

James Marshall and Peter Broadfoot, telephone linemen, were rendered unconscious at Glasgow yesterday by falling from a pole which suddenly broke. Broadfoot died in the infirmary.

One hundred and seventeen plots of land on Lord Orton's estate, at Knebworth (Herts), will be put up to auction to-morrow week. The descendant of the famous novelist is offering facilities to the present tenants to become purchasers of their holdings.

The Admiralty have decided that the Navy will take no official part in any celebration to be held on the centenary of the Battle of Trafalgar.

Known as the "Motor Fire King," the latest addition to the plant of the London Fire Brigade broke down yesterday on returning from a fire, and had to be dragged back to the station.

Princess Christian and Princess Victoria concluded their Midlothian visit yesterday, and proceeded to Cluny Castle, Aberdeenshire, where they will be the guests of Sir Reginald and Lady Cathcart.

Charged with murdering one comrade, in Belfast Barracks, and shooting another, Private Charles O'Mahoney, of the West Yorkshire Regiment, was committed for trial yesterday. He had suffered from sunstroke.

Charles E. Hamilton's musical comedy, "Peggy Macbeth," is having a very successful run in the provinces, and Mr. J. M. Capel's song, "Erin Is My Own Land," which is sung by the principal lady, Miss Claudia Lasell, is encored at every performance.

When accused at the City Summons Court yesterday of driving a funeral coach to the common danger, Joseph Kirby pleaded that a policeman in Lombard-street allowed the hearse to go, but held up the first coach. The horses tried to follow the hearse, and the pole just touched the officer.

YESTERDAY IN THE POLICE COURTS.

Miss Aida Lutina, who surrendered to her bail for the fourth time at Clerkenwell yesterday, charged with grave misconduct in Bloomsbury streets some weeks ago.

William Leslie, engineer, and Alice Cheeseman, typist, who were charged at the Guildhall yesterday with obtaining goods to the value of £30,000 by false pretences.

Cheshire's August shipments of salt established a record, the excess over those of August 1904 being 14,000 tons.

Efforts are being made to establish Hull as a wool market by throwing direct steamers thence to New South Wales.

Eton College reopened yesterday with the return of the lower boys, the Fifth and Sixth Forms re-assembling to-day and to-morrow respectively.

Birmingham now relies wholly on its Welsh water supply. For over a week the Midland city has been able to discard all other supplies for drinking purposes.

During the sinking of a new well near Golden Cross, Chiddingly (Sussex), a seam of coal has been discovered. Two barrow loads have been tried and burned well.

Orders for numerous passenger motor-cars to act as feeders to the railway had been given by the directors, said the chairman of the Glasgow and South-Western Railway Company at the half-yearly meeting yesterday.

Shot in the leg, a Sheffield pigeon which was taking part in a race from the Continent, fell into the water as it was crossing the estuary of the Severn. Two youths recovered the bird before it was drowned, and after nursing it restored it to its owners, Messrs. Thorne Bros., of Hollinsend.

Captain Herbert Gye, R.N., British Consul at Brest, has been made an officer of the Legion of Honour.

The Earl of Fingall, who met with a serious accident by being thrown from his trap, is making satisfactory progress at Kilken Castle, Co. Meath.

Three workmen were overcome by gas in the shaft of a new sewer at Cheadle Hulme, near Manchester, yesterday, and the condition of two is critical.

Knocked down by the Yarmouth express as he was crossing the Midland line at Syston, near Leicester, yesterday, Mr. Burrow, of Rempsone, Loughborough, was instantly killed.

In his official capacity as Inspector-General of the Forces the Duke of Connaught will visit Guernsey on Saturday to unveil a memorial to the Guernsey men who fell in the South African war.

Some of the prize-winners at the London Bulldog Association's fourteenth annual show at the Crystal Palace, opened yesterday, were certainly not conspicuous for their beauty. No fewer than 347 animals are exhibited.

Successful objections were sustained by the Liberals at the St. George's-in-the-East Registration Court, yesterday, to the claim for a vote of Mr. Henry H. Wells, the local Conservative Parliamentary candidate.

THE MODERN GIRL.

Do Women Work More Patiently Than Men?

"BETWEEN TWO STOOLS."

In one of to-day's letters it is suggested that women lack ideals.—

THE BUSINESS QUALITIES OF WOMAN.

Those of your correspondents who deny that women are ill-suited for business life can know very little of the sex.

While men are fusing and fuming, losing their tempers and their heads, and grumbling over the inevitable hardships of our modern toil-and-moil existence, a woman will go quietly on her way and patiently do her work, getting what she wants just as she wants it.

Trust a woman to make a material success of her life; trust a woman to put up with hardship for the sake of some material end; trust women to do while men are only talking!

Women have energy, patience, and no ideals. Therefore they have nothing to prevent them from working (in a world where ideals are out of place) much more successfully than men.

THE MANAGER OF A LARGE BUSINESS.

Oxford-street.

BETWEEN TWO STOOLS.

I certainly agree with "A Determined Bachelor" in all that he says about the French girl and her taste in dress.

The French girl realises that there is only one way of looking smart, if you happen to be poor—and that is by dressing simply.

If you are poor and yet insist upon silks, satins, bright colours, and elaborately trimmed hats you will inevitably fall between two stools. You will not get real pearls, silks, and satins, and you will not get the indescribable air of refinement which quiet dressing brings. You will look gaudy without looking grand.

As to the correspondent who denied that girls—at any rate, "business" girls—wear big hats, I can only say that she must be blind. They wear nothing else! Obviously the heat of the discussion is bringing out a well-known feminine defect—the inability to distinguish truth from falsehood. If worsted in an argument women generally resort to flat contradiction. It is easy, and has the advantage of irritating the opponent.

Craven-hill, Bayswater. MELDON-TRING.

MALE SEX RIBBON MEASURES.

Many girls manage to exist in London on one guinea a week, including out of that railway fare, board, lodging, etc. Certainly find it easy to "over-dress" on that amount.

I know dozens of girls struggling in the same manner. When a girl is paid a salary like that she only expects to do the ordinary routine work—shorthand and typewriting, though often work is given to her, as a matter of course, that is the acknowledged duty of a senior clerk. Yet even with the female brain, so despised by some of your readers, she manages to accomplish it.

Is it not, after all, less ridiculous to see a girl using a typewriter than a smirking, semi-genteel specimen of the male sex measuring out yards of ribbon behind a counter?

RHODESIAN GAMBLE OVER.

Chartered Company's Report Does Good Service in Protecting the Public.

CAPEL COURT, Tuesday Evening.—The Stock Markets are paying the penalty of the gamble encouraged by the wirepullers in the Rhodesian section. The Banquet report furnished by its expert for the Chartered Company has put matters in their correct light. A reasonable business proposition, but no justification for the eulogies and high market value that is the gist of it. The gamble has come to a full stop. Happily this time the public are not much let in. But it is to be feared that the market men have suffered somewhat by which these latter have lost no doubt hope to get the public in as well. The Chartered Company has done good service in the matter of this report.

There was enormous profit-taking in the Kaffir and Rhodesian market to-day, and at one time Banks were offered below £8, but they closed £2. Everything was lower, especially Rhodesians, but the close was rather above the worst.

To add to the misery, people began to talk about the Morocco affair again. It was probably the result, rather than the cause, of the Paris weakness, which was in doubt due to the fall in Kaffirs. Then in Lombard-street they assumed that the Bank rate would be raised on Thursday. So Consols looked unhappy, though they rallied to 89 9-16 at the finish.

The Chinese gambling shares, Pekins and Shafis, were introduced in Paris today.

The Foreign Railway group was as firm as any section of the "House," except perhaps Mexican Railways.

THE BABY AND THE OLD MAID.

A CORRESPONDENT, not a spinster herself, chides the Daily Mirror for its cartoon of yesterday. "Why ridicule spinsters who take an interest in babies?" she asks. "They can give time to the subject which few mothers can afford. Very often the unmarried woman whom Chance has deprived of the supreme gift of Motherhood is able to manage children far better than wives who have their quivers full of them."

Very true indeed. Quite undeniable. Yet scarcely relevant to our cartoon. The point of that was to illustrate the folly of gathering a lot of spinsters together in conference to discuss babies "in a scientific spirit." That spirit was exactly hit off by the remark of a member of the Liege Congress. "For the purposes of discussion, babies must cease to be regarded as darlings before they can be properly considered as subjects."

Now, to treat babies as "subjects" is utterly and entirely wrong from the start. It leads (or it would lead, if mothers ever consented to do it) to a dull uniformity of bringing up, which is the worst thing possible both for the baby itself and for the world in general. A congress of mothers really interested in babies from the "little darling" point of view might hammer out some useful results. A congress of spinsters determined to regard the little human animal as merely a "subject" for regulations and experiments, is laughable, and ought to be laughed at.

It is quite a recent fad, this fussy anxiety to bring children up on scientific principles. It has done next to no good for the reason that the learned people who talk about it have next to no knowledge of children and the way they are treated.

For example, a Professor at a Belgium university distinguished himself at Liege by declaring that it was torture to children to be compelled to sit quite still for long at a time, and proposing that every hour boys should get up and walk round the schoolroom.

Who compels children to sit still? No one. You cannot do it. They are always on the move. And might not the Professor have discovered, before he started laying down the law, that boys are scarcely ever in class for more than an hour at a time?

There is much for mothers and schoolmasters and for everyone who has to do with children to learn, but you will never get them to learn it by asking them to put aside their warm, human feelings and to look upon the little ones as "subjects" for scientific consideration. The spinsters who really help with children do not do it that way. E. B.

NOT QUITE LOGICAL.

Last week the Poplar and Stepney Sick Asylum managers had to settle what tenders they would accept for their next six months' supplies. In every case a local dealer's tender was accepted. Yet in no case was it the lowest.

That is to say, this public body decided to favour the local tradesmen, even though it cost them more.

"And quite right, too," will be most people's comment, as it certainly is mine. But what surprises me is this. Poplar, which acts so sensibly in a local matter, is dead against carrying the same principle into national affairs.

It returns to Parliament a Mr. Buxton, who is all for Free Trade, which means always buying in the cheapest market. Mr. Will Crooks, M.P., who is Poplar's idol, also declares that any attempt to favour British workmen, as Poplar tradesmen are favoured, would end in their having to pawn their trousers.

Yet the Poplar tradesmen do not seem to be suffering from the favour shown them. Indeed, they are inclined to think it does them a great deal of good.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY.

The most learned are often the most narrow-minded men.—Hastit.

THIS MORNING'S GOSSIP.

THE King's visit to Edinburgh is already becoming quite a magnificent legend in the imaginations of his loyal subjects in the north. The only actually sensational episode was the mishap to Sir Thomas Lipton, who appears to be unlucky in the matter of accidents. In a sense, though, these misfortunes of his are blessings in disguise. If it was unpleasant to fall from that position as "honorary colonel," and to be trampled upon in full view of the regiment, the incident has surely given Sir Thomas a prominence in the day's proceedings which must be very gratifying to so popular a man.

The Duke of Grafton has suffered a severe shock in the loss of his only daughter, Lady Eleanor Magniac. Lady Eleanor was in some ways a remarkable person. She was married at a very early age to the late Mr. Herbert Eaton, of Stetchworth Park, Newmarket, and he died in 1875. Then, scarcely a year after his death, Lady Eleanor married again. This time the marriage ended unhappily, and Lady Eleanor secured a divorce from her husband, who was a son of the third Lord Suffield, in 1900. The intrepid lady was not discouraged, however, by this misfortune, and only a year ago she was married, for the third time, to Mr. Herbert Magniac, who survives her.

daughter, and Lord Fingall is also suffering from the effects of a carriage smash. Motor-cars, therefore, the much-abused, the "sinister death-traps," as they have been pessimistically called, are not responsible for quite all the broken limbs in society. The Duchesse de Guise's accident is the most serious, but Lady Crewe-Milnes has also been in great pain. The Duchesse de Guise is one of the beautiful daughters of the Comtesse de Paris.

Lord Tankerville has once more astonished conventional people by giving one of his open-air mission services, this time with Lady Tankerville's help, at Snaileach, in Shropshire. To find a peer also amongst the evangelists is surprising, but Lord Tankerville has long shown that his devotion to mission work is not a mere caprice, like the "slumming," the Socialism, and the philanthropy of many of his class, but a real and persistent enthusiasm. Before he succeeded to his title he was an intimate friend of Mr. Moody, the famous evangelist, and he accompanied that gentleman on a tour through America, "where the hymns come from."

To Americans it was inexpressibly fascinating to hear an English peer singing with a really fine voice the familiar Moody and Sankey hymns to the his taste for the technicalities of the game to his heart's delight.

Sigñor d'Annunzio is already as famous as even he, who, of all men, is the eagerest for praise, could wish to be. It is a pity that he should have added to his reputation as a poet, a novelist, and a playwright that of an incorrigible breaker of women's hearts. That part of his reputation is what people in Italy now discuss as interestingly as the other. It is rumoured that Sigñor d'Annunzio is to seek a divorce from the wife whom he has never treated with any excessive affection or respect.

When he "came out" in Roman society, after the publication of his first poems, d'Annunzio made himself an enviable reputation as a Don Juan. To look at him now you would imagine that those days of folly must be passed. He is bald, he is rather stout, he is getting middle-aged. But women in Italy and everywhere else are the same. "Solid two classes of men," as the younger Dumas said, exist for them: "Those whom they love—and the others." D'Annunzio has never been amongst the others."

THROUGH THE "MIRROR."

THE PRICE OF FUR.

One of your correspondents says the fact of the poor living in dirt in the slums proves how rotten society is. It does not prove anything of the sort.

Surely your brilliant correspondent does not expect society to go to the slums and show them how to wash themselves and clean their homes.

If they are placed in better surroundings they hardly ever appreciate them or improve.

A LOVER OF TRUTH.

Severn-road, Weston-super-Mare.

I have read the letter of "M. Yglesias." Certainly either he or I have misunderstood the article complained of. I gathered it was not so much the buying of costly furs which was condemned, but rather the miserable pittance which those who made them received.

I entirely agree with the latter part of your correspondent's letter, viz., that the greater the demand the greater the employment given.

But are we to dress at the expense of our brothers' blood? Are men and women and children to spend years of the most miserable, half-starved existence that others—those glibly call themselves their brothers or sisters—may get good clothes cheaply?

And if we dare to make a protest are we to be called blasphemous?

87, Sheet-street, Windsor.

H. W. AGER.

TOO MANY COLLECTIONS.

I think it is a good thing to have collections at every service. We do not value what we get for nothing. Perhaps an even better plan would be what you suggest—a charge for admission to church, or, as in some Roman Catholic places of worship, a charge for seats and footstools.

REGULAR CHURCHGOER.

Thurlow-square, S.W.

If we did not collect for extra curates, missions, and building funds, we should never get the money at all.

I would gladly give all offertories to the poor, but the work of my church could not be carried on if I did.

This is because the Church does not make proper provision for its priests and their ministry to be supported without continual touting.

A SOUTH LONDON VICAR.

THE COLLAR TORTURE.

Saw-edged collars come from ironing the rims.

"C. J. S. and C. G." should try a little article called "Glatolatin." Just a rub with this makes the worst saw-edged collar a joy to wear.

By the way, why do men wear collars at all? The gentler sex seem to have discarded neckwear.

PHILIP HUGHES.

St. Michael's-street, Shrewsbury.

Myself and hundreds of others have the same complaint to make as "C. J. S." and "C. G." The complaint is universal.

New collars, shirts, and handkerchiefs after a few washes at the laundries become so torn and jagged as to be useless. Shirt buttons become broken or torn off altogether.

The old style of getting the washing done in the home or residence was preferable to the present system of creating dividends for laundry companies.

IN MY GARDEN.

SEPTEMBER 19.—Beautiful mauve-pink blossoms now rise from the meadow saffrons. These silken bulbils (often found growing wild, but seen far fewer in gardens) send up their flowers after the leaves have died down, thus resembling the autumn crocus.

That well-known and exceedingly showy stonecrop (spectacle), with its curious thick and fleshy foliage, is beginning to clothe itself with pale pink flowers. This plant, perhaps the most welcome member of an interesting family, is one of the easiest perennials to cultivate, and, blooming far into October, its bright wheate flowers are getting scarce.

E. F. T.

No. 1 is the kind of man who figures in sensational bigamy cases. He never seems to find it difficult to induce any number of women to marry him. No. 2 is the kind of man who is generally a bachelor. What is the explanation of this strange preference of women for the monstrous, the ugly, and the weird?

Lady Eleanor's father, the Duke of Grafton, is one of the oldest peers now living—he was eighty-four last June. During the last twenty years or so, naturally enough, he has been very little before the public. But he has had a distinguished career, and proved his gallantry during the Crimean war, where he fought with the famous Coldstreamers. He was out in Crimea that he nearly lost his life. While fighting in the trenches he was shot in the chin, and for days it was doubtful whether he would recover. The Duke is one of King Edward's oldest friends, for he was an equerry to Queen Victoria while his Majesty was only a child. His wife, who died many years ago, was the beautiful and witty Lady Charles Fitz-Roy, an aunt of the present Prime Minister.

This is the season for hunting accidents, and a good many well-known people are already suffering from the effects of them. Lord Huntingdon is now much better after his bad fall a few weeks ago. Both he and Lady Huntingdon are very keen riders to hounds. They generally spend the hunting season at their place in King's County, Ireland, where they have a splendid polo-ground and a racecourse all to themselves. Sometimes Lady Huntingdon is at Melton, however. She is a fine horsewoman. Her father, the late Mr. Samuel Wilson, was a very rich man, and his daughter has therefore any amount of money of her own.

Other riding accidents have happened recently to the Duchesse de Guise and to Lord Crewe's accomplices of a harmonium. Lord Tankerville materially contributed to the success of the mission of 1892. The performance, besides its actual merit, had something of that of mysterious fascination, which belongs to the most dangerous whom you may sometimes meet at sordid pleasure-gardens. The singers may sing indifferently, and be without any extraordinary personal attraction, but they are masked, it is dimly hinted that they are aristocratic people fallen on evil days, and the hidden faces more than make up for what the voices and the playing lack.

Everybody is sorry to hear of the disappointment which Lord and Lady Ingester have lately suffered—the latter has just given birth to a stillborn son. Lord and Lady Ingester were only married in the spring of 1904. He is, of course, the eldest son of the Earl of Shrewsbury, and will some day have a very responsible position to fill. The task of looking after the Staffordshire estates which belong to his family will be quite enough to occupy his time. When he came of age, just two years ago, the duties of landowners were duly impressed upon him by the speakers at a great banquet given at Ingester Hall in his honour.

At present Lord Ingester has certainly joined with enthusiasm in the motor-car craze. He really knows the "points" of these dangerous and expensive animals as well as any professional chauffeur, and as his father has, I think, something to do with one of the large depots, the son can indulge

THREE FREE DAYS AT

THE CRYSTAL PALACE FOR

"DAILY MIRROR" DAY AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE TO-MORROW.

To-morrow, Friday, and Saturday Daily Mirror readers will be admitted free to the Crystal Palace. For thirteen hours each day visitors, however many, need not spend a dull moment, for to the already innumerable attractions many others have been added. There has only been one such opportunity of visiting London's most famous pleasure house before; there may never come another. The photographs show the Crystal Palace and the Somali village there.

YESTERDAY'S NEWS.Interesting Paragraphs Concerning Current Events.

Remarkable Coin.

There was little difficulty in identifying one piece of money stolen by an Oldham woman, who has been sent to prison, for the coin was a farthing bearing the impress of a swine, caused through the previous owner while carrying a farthing and other money getting her hand crushed by a wheel in a fatal railway accident.

High Prices for Rams.

Though the 650 guineas given at Lincoln by a Buenos Ayres breeder for a long-wool ram is an unusually high figure, it is not a record. At the Park Royal Show in the summer a first-prize Lincoln yearling was sold for 1,000 guineas for the Argentine, while five other yearlings rams of the same breed changed hands at 300 guineas each.

Mme. Humbert's Sanguine Brother.
Roman Daunringac, Mme. Humbert's brother, is in no way upset by the refusal of the New York authorities to allow him to enter the United States and set his face towards Europe again, yesterday, in perfect contentment. He says that he will try his fortune in Paris as a novelist and contributor to the newspapers. Should that fail—but Roman is not a pessimist—he will fall back upon the craft of chairmaking, which he learned in prison.

Danger of Disease in Figs.

A note of warning to eaters of the famous Smyrna figs was sounded by a correspondent in the "Times" yesterday. Writing from Smyrna, he states that it is necessary, though probably few people know it, to use a little salt water in packing the figs, and that some of the packers use for this purpose purified water drawn from the bay into which the whole drainage of the city is discharged. This water probably contains the germs of typhoid and every other disease. "Is it not possible," he suggests, "that disease may thus be imported into the country, disease and sorrow?"

Barristers' "Holiday" Tasks.

Though the revising barristers are now in the thick of their work while their brethren of the Bar are still enjoying the leisure of the Long Vacation, they greatly prefer that their special duties as such should not interfere with their ordinary work at the Bar. As remuneration they receive the substantial fee of 250 guineas, out of which, however, they have to pay their travelling and other expenses. The chief restriction imposed upon a revising barrister is that he must not take any active part in political life.

The American Holiday "Rush."

Inquiries in London yesterday at the chief hotels proved that there is an unusually large number of Americans still in town for so late in the year. They are "held up" owing to the inability of the steamship lines to provide them with passages. Never before have so many tourists crossed the Atlantic. The latest returns from America show that from the first day of the year until the last week in August nearly eighty thousand saloon and sixty thousand second cabin passengers left United States and Canadian ports.

Changes at Eton.

Eton boys returning to school yesterday were eagerly discussing the reforms which it is rumoured their new headmaster, Canon Lyttelton, will introduce. Perhaps they were most interested in the report that the ceremony of presenting a birch to him by the Captain of the school, on his assumption of his new duties, is to be omitted. Other rumours were that there would be no more champagne suppers in the "Fourth," and that motoring to be discouraged. Many wealthy boys have been in the habit of hiring cars from the local garages, and others have even gone so far as to maintain their own vehicles.

Where the King Is Staying.

The great deer forest at Glenquoich, where the King has arrived as the guest of Lord and Lady Burton, should provide excellent sport on the two days for which drives have been arranged. As it is possible, though the roads are rough, to motor into the very heart of the glen, his Majesty will be saved undue fatigue. Glenquoich forms part of the old estate of the Macdonells, Chiefs of Glengarry, whose home and fastness stood for centuries at Invergarry. It has been leased for upwards of thirty years by Lord Burton. One of the show places of the district is Loch Hourn ("The Loch of Hell"), a spot presenting the most desolate and savage scenery in all Scotland.

Hypnotised by the Sea.

A Southport bathing-van proprietor, who was grumbling at the smallness of his profits this year, and who thinks that mixed bathing would improve trade, advances a novel theory as to the "dangers" of sea bathing. In the course of an experience covering many years he states that he has frequently found bathers—especially ladies—who appear to be in some sense hypnotised by the water immediately they enter it. In many cases they have collapsed and fallen helpless in a few inches of water immediately on leaving the van.

A Missing Earthquake.

So distressing are the accounts of the suffering caused by the repeated earthquake shocks experienced in Italy that most people have forgotten that an earthquake recorded at all the seismological stations in England so long ago as July 9 is still missing. As it was a prolonged and very violent movement, which lasted for more than two hours, both Professor Milne, of Newport, and Dr. Davidson, of Birmingham, agreed that it was the most serious recorded for ten years. As no news of it has yet been received, it must have occurred at sea or at the North Pole, where Reuter has not yet established a correspondent.

Actors and Fish.

The theatrical touring season is now in full swing, and some very amusing incidents crop up at wayside stations, where the actors and actresses stop on the touring journeys from town to town. As the companies are forced to travel on Sundays they invariably have to travel in a couple of carriages attached to a goods train. There is a story of a small company arriving late at night at a little station several hours overland. As the train crawled up to the deserted platform the solitary porter called out to the guard, "What have you got there, Bill?" "Fish and actors," was the reply. The players looked at one another indignantly until the tragedian rose to the occasion, and drawing himself up majestically he remarked, "My good man, I really think you might have put actors first."

"MY NERVES ARE OUT OF ORDER"

A Talk about a Trouble Affecting
Many People. The Nerves
Quickly Restored by Taking Bishop's Tonules.

Every day you hear somebody complaining because their nerves are out of order. It does not matter where you go, or whom you meet, someone or another is always telling you that they feel quite worn out, unable to get on with their work, unable even to think properly of what they have to do, and they are quite certain that sooner or later they will break down. It is no use grumbling about it, because grumbling will not restore your nerves or make you better. What you need to do is to find out what it really is that is "wrong," and then find the remedy that will put you together again. If your nerves are out of order read what we have to tell you, and we will explain what you have to do to make yourself well again.

HOW THE NERVES BECOME DISORDERED

Every moment in the day the body is being constantly renewed, and at the same time it is being constantly renewed, and it is even said that the tissues, nerves, muscles, and organs are completely renewed once in every seven years. Physical exertion wears the muscles away and hard thinking, worry, anxiety, study, and the strain of business life wear away brain and nerve tissue. Obviously, both muscular and nerve tissue needs to be restored by rest and food as fast as it is worn away, and if you are thoroughly healthy and not overworked this goes on without you knowing anything about it. In many cases, however, the exertion, either of body or brain, is too intense or too prolonged, and the result is that the wearing away process goes on faster than that of replacement. Physical or mental breakdown consequently ensues. This is the simple explanation of the way in which the nervous or muscular system gets out of order, and it is our object here to explain the method by which the nervous system may be renewed and nervous collapse prevented.

NERVE NOURISHMENT

The special elements necessary for nerve nourishment are not quite the same as those required for muscular nourishment. Everyone knows that if a man is in athletic training he has to take the particular foods in the proper quantities best calculated to "build up healthy muscle." Similarly, if a man or woman has to work hard with the head, or there is a great strain on the nervous system, other chemical elements are particularly necessary to build up and strengthen the nerve and brain. These elements are contained in Bishop's Tonules, and Nerves broken down.

he it is that Bishop's Tonules, and Tonules nourish the nerves, create nerve power, economise nerve energy, and establish a reserve of nerve strength. There is no better way of restoring a weakened nervous system to healthy activity than by the adoption of Bishop's Tonule treatment.

A SCIENTIFIC REMEDY

Please recollect that in adopting Bishop's Tonule treatment you are not using a quack remedy of doubtful composition. Messrs. Alfred Bishop are quite willing at any time to explain the nature and the composition of Bishop's Tonules in confidence to any qualified medical man, so that before prescribing them lie may know precisely what he is doing. No more perfect guarantee of the genuineness of the remedy can possibly be given.

SIGNS OF NERVOUS DISORDER

The reason we keep on telling you what are the warning signs of nervous trouble is that the importance of recognising them at once is so great. If you know just what is the matter with you when you first feel that you are out of health, you can stop the further progress of your trouble and save future discomfort or possible nervous breakdown. Go through this list carefully, so that you may see if you suffer in any of these ways. Do you suffer from lassitude, utter weariness, mental and muscular fatigue after very slight exertion, nervous and general debility, impaired vitality, mental depression, sleeplessness, neuralgia, nervous headache, weakened will power, loss of self-confidence and lack of pluck in trying situations, inability for sustained mental effort, irritability, brain fag, or the exhaustion following influenza or other exhausting ailment? If the symptoms mentioned above are yours, commence Bishop's Tonule treatment immediately.

FINE PERFORMANCE BY IMPERIAL II.

Mr. S. Joel's Horse Wins the Members' Plate—Ill-Luck of Lord Carnarvon.

WHEATLEY IN FRONT AGAIN.

WARWICK, Tuesday Night.—That good horse Imperial II. did a fine performance in winning the Members' Handicap, under the welter weight of 10st. He began speedily, but no better than Captain, who had the rails, but dropped out below the distance. Lady Honora did not improve on Lord Carnarvon's recent luck, as she got badly away. Lowland Lady and Frances Isobel made a determined dash towards the close, but failed to get up, and suffered defeat by the narrow margin of "heads" and "necks."

* * *

When betting opened on this race liberal rates were offered, but finally Imperial II. settled down in decided favouritism. It was greatly to the winner's advantage that the going was perfect. Indeed, I have never seen the course in as good trim before. The weather, too, was delightfully fine, and the gathering was first-rate, the outside crowd turning up in large numbers.

* * *

The two-year-old races were fairly interesting. Backers were much divided in opinion on the relative merits of Clioona and Cecil filly, for the Wellesbourne Nursery. Lord Howard de Walden's filly ultimately had the larger following, but those who had previously accepted short rates about the Cecil filly had the best of the business at the close, as she won very comfortably, whereas Clioona was practically never in the hunt.

* * *

Fallon's stable relied upon Vallenbrosa in the Little Breeders' Plate. She cut up badly, and in beginning very slowly practically extinguished her chance, leaving Little Theo to make all the running and win in a canter. M. Cannon, the rider of the winner, is very popular at Warwick, and on returning to scale received an ovation.

* * *

There was a good field for the Leamington Handicap, and the recent winner at Derby, Dexter, had the most support in the ring. Bonanza was backed down to 3 to 1, and Mark Wood also had plenty of support. The last-named made the best show of the fancied division, but failed to resist the outsider, Kaffir Chief, who scored by a neck, and thus made ample amends for the previous day's defeat.

* * *

Thus George Chaloner scored a useful double for Mr. F. S. Barnard, whose colours were at one period so prominent on the Turf. The feature of the contest was the continuance of Lord Carnarvon's ill luck, as Bushy Boy was left at the post and Smara got badly away. Smara made up a lot of ground in the first stretch, but ran wide at the turn into the straight. In the run-in the race was virtually confined to Kaffir Chief and Mark Wood.

* * *

Departed, a big order for the Town Welter, fell lame in the race, which was over a two-mile course. Perseverance made a splash with Vickers in the early stages, but the former was beaten before a mile had been traversed, and on entering the straight Debuteante drew away with a long lead, to score very readily. This success placed Wheately once more ahead of Maher in the list of winning jockeys.

* * *

Lord Howard de Walden's colours were in luck's way in the Stoneleigh Plate, which wound up the meeting, but Decanter would not have won if Prince Vladimir had not lost twenty lengths when the barrier went up.

AMATEUR FOOTBALL.

Retirement of a Popular L.F.A.
Vice-President—Stanley
Harris and the F.A.

M. T. S. Oldham's retirement from the vice-presidency of the London Football Association is something of a blow to the sportsmen who have split on the board. The result of Mr. Oldham's and his unflinching tact and courtesy calmed many a turbulent scene at the council board. He was one of the old brigade, and with that splendid spirit of all-round sportsmanship which were for so long rare. It is to be hoped that Mr. Oldham, though privy in secret, to have to listen to the noisy quibbles on amateurism which were continually breaking out in the London Association.

With such an imposing membership as 1,100 clubs one would think that responsibility would have brought its own corollary—dignity to the executive. I am looking forward, however, to the day when we shall have a strong and representative body of men that shall govern every class of "Soccer" club in the metropolis. But the tide, from what I gather at High Holborn, is at the flood, and the London Association must take it or soon the Football Association will be delegating certain powers to another body.

Following in the wake of the Isthmian League comes another competition for the great unpaid. This is the London Association Cup, "The Cup of the Century." Oldmen has been secured as president and the honorary secretary is Mr. W. P. Rowlands, the Stock Exchange, E.C. This seems the right sort thing for conserving the amateur principles of football. It is laid down that "No club shall be allowed to enter unless it can incur in a League game," and that "each club is in honour bound to play its reserve team."

The competition consists of not more than eight amateur clubs affiliated to a recognised association. And the executive will "have power to punish any club behaving in an unsportsmanlike manner." The man who drafted these rules certainly possessed the mind in question.

In answer to a correspondent, I would state that the Football Association International Selection Committee consists of J. C. Clegg, G. Craven, G. Sheldington, C. J. Hughes, J. Bentle, W. Pickford H. Walker, A. Davis, and R. P. Gregson. This is a most excellent body of gentlemen, but it would be rather a new thing in the history of football if it were to be put on the committee. He has had a little experience of class football, and he is a member of the council.

LONDON'S BOY CAPTAINS.

Youthful Footballers Who Have Won Honours in Inter-City Matches.

When a boy is selected to captain the representative team he is chosen "on account of more than average ability." It is therefore interesting to note how the captains of various seasons have fared.

The first London team played in 1899, and its captain was Charlie Sheld. He has several successful years with junior clubs, but is now a popular player with the Fulham club. In the team he commanded was Harold Hesse, who has been very prominent during the last season, and now appears to share his services between Chelsea and Fulham.

In the next two seasons the captains were both from Tottenham. Charlie Bird and Fred Lewis remain faithful to the "Page Green" Old Boys, and they have been large factors in the success of the team to present senior rank. We do not know whether their loyalty to their club would allow them to assist the "Spurs" if they were asked, but it is somewhat of a reflection upon the Board of management that they have never been "discovered."

Lionel Louie was the succeeding captain. He was one of the most dangerous forwards London ever had, and will always be remembered for his career. Unfortunately, he has been troubled by knee trouble, and has had a long compulsory rest. The next leader was Charlie Rance, who is now playing capital football for Clapton, and E. Plumbe, who led the team last season, remains yet a schoolboy.

CURED HIS RUPTURE

Mr. E. Kinnear, 339, Birchfield Road, Perry Barr, Birmingham, had suffered severely for 14 years, and was soundly cured at 66 years of age. This case is one of the many thousands who have entirely dispensed with a truss after using the Kinnear Method of treatment. For the benefit of all ruptured people a sample treatment and complete detail will be sent free (sealed and post paid) to all who write at once.

A thoroughly tried method that has cured every kind and condition of rupture in men, women and children, the Kinnear Method, as well as the gentleman of business, without pain, danger, or loss of time, and at a small cost. A cure and freedom from suffering and years of trouble added to the length of life.

I have just issued a very valuable treatise on "Rupture" which will enable any sufferer to understand the true nature of Rupture as any Doctor. It also explains fully the process of cure, and will show you just what to do to be cured. I want to issue a copy at once for the sample treatment and valuable benefit I know it will be to them. Don't fail to write at once for the sample treatment and this valuable book at one shilling each. Address E. Kinnear, 339, Birchfield Road, Birmingham, 10s. 6d. may be had for a copy. Address W. S. RICE, SPECIALIST (B), 34, S. & 9, STONECUTTER STREET, LONDON, E.C.
